/24-7PressRelease.com/ - NEW YORK, NY, March 27, 2005 - - Silicon Alley Computers is a new computer company with a real and continuing focus on the home PC user. They offer a refreshing new way to purchase computer products online. Without hype, misleading advertising, or confusing offers, they are not just another online computer store.

With a shift in focus of many top computer companies from the individual to the business customer, the home computer shopper is increasingly being left behind. While being open to business purchases, Silicon Alley Computers promises to never lose sight of why they started their computer business; the individual computer buyer.

The company offers a straightforward and secure computer shopping experience. They have an easy to navigate website and offer only quality computer products at competitive prices. They sell desktop and laptop computers, hardware, software, and more. They also offer pc hardware and software installations, comprehensive service and support, and secure online ordering.
