Antenna 2.7 Launches - Stormdance's Visual Web Design Solution Gets Powerful Menu And Colour Mixing Tools

Stormdance releases Antenna Web Design Studio 2.7 - visual web site creation software for developing professional sites rapidly without coding. Over 50 improvements including powerful menu and colour mixing tools

/24-7PressRelease/ - July 27, 2006 - The latest release of Stormdance's visual web design software studio, Antenna 2.7, is now available, enabling beginners to create professional web sites visually without coding and with no previous experience.

Version 2.7 adds over 50 enhancements: A smart menu object creates pull-down menus quickly, automatic complimentary and harmonic colour palette creation selects colours that work well together, an eye-dropper picks any colour straight off the screen and text boxes support multiple font sizes. Updates to all objects take advantage of the new opacity support in Opera 9 and form field validation is now built in. Several interface improvements such as automatic resizing of drop-down lists and a revised publishing dialogue speed up work-flow.

Antenna has the power to complete sophisticated sites in a short space of time - so experienced designers can develop sites rapidly without spending hours crafting complex HTML code. Excellent cross-browser compatibility ensures text and images appear in web browsers exactly where they are placed in the editor with pixel accuracy, taking the headache out of web page layout. The software includes built in graphics capabilities for creating attractive roll-over buttons and smooth gradients, and has its own site publisher - cutting down on the need for additional software. It also creates professional digital photo galleries with a choice of gallery layout and a quick access thumbnail image strip.

For those new to Antenna there's a set of free helpful on-line animated video tutorials so beginners can get up to speed quickly.
