PACIFIC DESIGN & GAMILA LAUNCH THE INDIE ARTISTS COLLECTION

iPod /MP3 and Gaming Case Collection Features Artwork of Paul Friedrich and David Eichenberger

Pacific Design, a mobile technology case manufacturer, and Gamila, a product brand dedicated to "designs that make you smile," have partnered to create the Indie Artists Collection.

Featuring the artwork of indie-comicbook favorite Paul Friedrich and artist David Eichenberger, the Indie Artists Collection includes Gaming Street Packs in four different prints that fit Sony PSP, Nintendo DS Lite, Gameboy Advance/SP and Wii remotes as well as Apple iPod 2nd and 3rd Generation nano cases.

Paul Friedrich, an artist from Raleigh, North Carolina, is the mastermind behind the cult comic sensation Onion Head Monster and the editor of HellCar Online magazine. He contributed three pieces of art to the collection, "Onion Head Monster Bathtub," "Onion Head Monster Vroom" and "Robot Destroy".

David Eichenberger, an emerging Raleigh artist and creator of The Dawgs recycled wood panels, contributed "Single Bird Dino" artwork to the collection.

The Indie Artists Collection is available now at www.pacificdesign.com, www.gamilacompany.com and at major retailers including Circuit City. Prices range from $19.99 to $24.99.

About Gamila

Gamila is a lifestyle brand based in Raleigh, NC, and is the sister company of Gamil Design, a product and graphic design firm. Gamila develops "designs that make you smile," and the goal of each new product is to create something of beauty, simplicity and innovation. Partnering with tea connoisseurs to create the wildly successful Teastick, Gamila built upon their home grown network to create their next product. Combining local artists with indie bands and record stores, Gamila has created expressive accessories to lead the digital music revolution.
