/24-7PressRelease/ - ATLANTA, GA, December 16, 2007 - Atlanta Airport Marriott's acclaimed restaurant, Bentleys Steakhouse is known for their succulent steaks, but there are numerous other reasons to experience the casual elegance of this legendary Atlanta steak restaurant this holiday season.

Guided by Chef Robert Lescanec, Bentleys Steakhouse is leading the way in terms of world class cuisine paired with distinctive, bold wines.

Chef Robert Lescanec was introduced to the food and beverage business at an early age by his mother and grandmother who helped his aunt and uncle at a small caf in his hometown of Steelton, Pennsylvania. At a bakery in his hometown, Chef Lescanec began pursuing his craft professionally, which led him to hone his cooking skills at Johnson & Wales University where he graduated with an Associate Degree in Culinary Arts and a Bachelors Degree in Hotel & Restaurant Management.

Bentleys Steakhouse, under the watchful eye of Chef Lescanec, boasts a casually sophisticated dining environment amidst a contemporary setting warmed with Southern hospitality and superior service. Serving the finest USDA steaks, Silverton lamb, and South Australian lobster complimented by signature side dishes make for tastefully inspired menu options and exquisite entrees.

The expansive wine list features over 150 international wines to please even the most discerning palette. Receiving the Wine Spectator "Award of Excellence" from 1999 to 2005, this stately Atlanta airport restaurant is proud of the variety of labels they carry.

Intimate dining chambers, individually appointed with exclusive gallery art are perfect for business engagements or intimate, romantic evenings. A wonderful way to celebrate the season with corporate clients or those you love, Bentleys offers delectable dining options for intimate to expansive dinner parties. Bentleys gift cards are also great stocking stuffers for those living near Atlanta or traveling to the city.
