CARIBBEAN CULTURE RUNS WILD ON THE INTERNET . . .

CaribGoneWild.com officially launches in April '07 delivering Caribbean to the world and uniting this vast community under one umbrella.

/24-7PressRelease/ - NEW YORK, NY, January 25, 2008 - "Finally there's a website where people from all over the Caribbean can go and network, chat, create business opportunities and socialize with others who speak their native tongue," explains Shaft, founder and CEO of CaribGoneWild.com. "You can listen to Zouk, Kompa, Salsa, Merengue, Reggaeton, Reggae, Soca or Calypso music, download the latest videos, create your own profile, have classmates, promote your business - all free of charge!"

A virtual Caribbean myspace, CaribGoneWild.com links individuals from the US with family, friends and opportunities back home. Why pay ridiculous long distance charges to Canada, Miami or Haiti when you can chat for free at CaribGoneWild.com?! Users also have the luxury of downloading Caribbean music for .99, with new catalogues added daily and available now!

Equipped with luxuries of other notable sites like personalized web pages where users can create a profile, add pictures or slide shows and promote themselves, CaribGoneWild.com is the first to dedicate its cyberspace specifically to a unique community. In addition to updated job postings, this innovative site provides listings of the hottest parties around the planet. Even if you're outside the Caribbean diaspora, it's a great way to advertise and tap into an international market.

"The influence of places like Caribbean in popular culture is tremendous to say the least," says Shaft who himself is of Haitian descent. "To have a platform like CaribGoneWild.com, where you can be a step ahead of the rest when it comes to our style and ideas is amazing. Finally, there's somewhere to go for us to freely express ourselves, stay in touch with our roots, network with one another, build prospects and let everyone see why we're so viable in business and lifestyle."

Kicking off the new year, CaribGoneWild.com generated scores of new users already buzzing about this latest craze. Creating a firestorm among the web community, CaribGoneWild.com is by far the next realm of the internet and in turn, the future.
