Kineo Rapid E-Learning Hits the Road

Kineo, leaders in Rapid e-learning, has announced a series of rapid e-learning free workshops across the UK in February. The workshops provide a practical opportunity for e-learning professionals to experience, discuss and debate how to deploy rapid e-learning in their organisations.

/24-7PressRelease/ - BRIGHTON, UK, January 29, 2008 - At the workshops, Kineo will provide examples of how organisations are deploying rapid e-learning, demonstrating some of the best authoring tools and exploring ideas about creative e-learning design through real examples.

Kineo's Managing Partner Steve Rayson commented: "The drivers for more rapid e-learning approaches include the speed of change in organisations, increasingly distributed workforces and demands on budgets. The good news is there are a lot of exciting developments in this area with new processes and design ideas which can enable organisations to deliver quality content quickly and cost-effectively."

"We have seen a huge demand for rapid e-learning and we have had many organisations asking us for advice on how best to deploy rapid e-learning. At our free workshops we will be focusing on the practical aspects of deploying rapid e-learning and how to exploit the benefits of speed and cost."

Kineo will be running their free rapid e-learning workshops in London on 13th February and in Sheffield on 21st February 2008. For more information contact Kineo at seminars@kineo.co.uk or call on 01273 728900.
