So Many Music Sites!

As Christian artists we need to be extra cautious when mapping out online strategies.

/24-7PressRelease/ - January 29, 2008 - I'm just like every other Christian indie out there when it comes to exposure, however i've noticed a growing trend in the content of many music sites that is, disturbing, to say the least for those of us trying to rep for Christ and bring others into the kingdom of God.

Artistic types (self included) tend to be a little crazy I know but many sites don't monitor the content like a Christian webmaster would and we're left with the resulting decay. These sites are controlled by people who could care less about Jesus or His message.

Bottom line? Be careful where you place your stuff, it could come back to bite you. When people type in your name to a searchbox and can be led into a den of devils...that's not ministry.

If all you're looking to do is grow your fanbase and don't care where you get them or where you may be bringing potential fans by all means get out there; but if you're really looking out for the ones that are supporting you, please be careful. Their eternal destiny may be at stake.
