DrOfficeJobs Makes It Easy to Find Qualified Dental Assistants

Dentists Get Half-Off Job Listings on DrOfficeJobs.com During Children's Dental Health Month

/24-7PressRelease/ - PHOENIX, AZ, February 16, 2008 — In honor of Children's Dental Health Month, DrOfficeJobs.com is announcing a special offer for dental practices to post employment opportunities for dental assistants and other job listings.

During the month of February, dental office employers nationwide will receive 50 percent off their job postings at DrOfficeJobs.com.

Finding a qualified dental assistant is easy thanks to DrOfficeJobs.com, a new job board designated ONLY for jobs within doctor offices such as dental offices, chiropractic clinics, plastic surgery centers, medspas, vision centers, animal hospitals, small medical offices — any office with a licensed doctor.

"DrOfficeJobs.com is incredibly easy-to-use," said Dr. Joel R. Clark, D.D.S., a dentist at A to Z Pediatric Dentistry in Mesa, Ariz. "You can search job listings, resumes or post a job listing with little effort, all for a nominal fee."

DrOfficeJobs.com is designed for small and medium-sized employers who need qualified professionals but are no longer interested in paying the high prices associated with massive job boards.

"Many employers are discovering that 'one size fits all' job boards are too general, and that it's difficult to find specialized candidates in a sea of outdated resumes," said Don Speaker, president of DrOfficeJobs.com. "It's our goal to provide medical and dental practices a cost-effective way to find specialized, quality professionals."

Employers who use DrOfficeJobs.com enjoy a feature-packed suite of easy-to-use tools for finding and hiring qualified candidates. Not only can employers post jobs and search the resume database, they can set custom alerts to be notified when a candidate matching the qualifications they seek joins the job board. Employers also can:

- send private messages to candidates through the system;
- save 'favorite' candidates' resumes to review later;
- post a 'qualifying questionnaire' with each job listing to better screen applicants;
- set auto-responders with personalized messages to job applicants; and
- enjoy low prices and a highly targeted pool of candidates.

Dental assistants and other jobseekers who use DrOfficeJobs.com can search job listings and post their resume for free. Like employers, they also have access to custom tools and alerts, including a resume builder that guides them, step by step, to presenting a professional resume to employers.
