Professional FOREX trader Peter Parsons Releases His Personal Automated Trading Software To Public

Peter Parsons, a professional FOREX trader for over 15 years recently released his own personalized automated trading software for public consumption.

/24-7PressRelease/ - February 18, 2008 - Look out Warren Buffet and George Soros here comes Peter Parsons.

Peter Parsons has been a professional currency trader for about 15 years. Fourteen months ago he embarked on mission to totally automate his trading system. The result is an amazing software program he calls Range Trader Phase Two.

After running his software for several months, Mr. Parsons realized he had created an automated money making machine. Consequently, he recently decided to release his software to the public for the purpose of building the margin in his own FOREX account.

According to Mr. Parsons, the software is so simple all you have to do is set it and push "GO" and it trades the FOREX market 24/7. Mr. Parsons' says the software is 94% percent accurate, and he averages between 3%-15% or more per month profit. It is designed to use with the Metatrader 4 trading platform. This means you can open a min-trading account and use his software for as little as $250.00. Even if you have no experience trading FOREX, you can make money simply by using his software says Parsons.

The latest version of the software comes with many upgrades from Phase 1. For example this version makes approximately 24 trades per day as opposed to the 5 trades per day he had with phase 1. This version of the software also manages your money and compounds your account while keeping a tight reign on your losses.

If Peter Parsons is right, there is no other product on the market that can compare with his.
