eSearchNet Launches Membership Program

eSearchNet (<http://www.esearchnet.com>), today announced the re-launch of their website with a new membership program and more engaging content for it's users. The website has also received a complete face-lift and added new content channels.

/24-7PressRelease/ - CAMPBELL, CA, March 20, 2008 - eSearchNet (<http://www.esearchnet.com>), today announced the re-launch of their website with a new membership program and more engaging content for it's users. The website has also received a complete face-lift and added new content channels.

The website now offers a brand new membership program that provides it's users email with ~6GB space and other applications. Members can now create, manage and share documents, spreadsheets and presentations. Members can also create their own websites and profile pages using eSearchNet Applications when they sign up for an account.

The website has also launched a brand new Local channel that will allow users to search and find classified content within their own city and metropolitan region. Users can post their classified item listings for free.

These new offerings will compliment existing content channels including regional and international news, weather, web search engine, web directory, online travel, jobs and career, personal finance, shopping, small business resources, dating and articles on interesting topics.

eSearchNet has also invested in acquiring their own infrastructure and re-developed the website using new technologies. This will help streamline implementation of more features and applications that are in the works for the near future.
