Paradox Community Technologies Selects LoveMyPrices.com as a Strategic Partner

Micro2000 simplifies efforts to place quality computer systems with those less fortunate

/24-7PressRelease/ - FILLMORE, CA, April 17, 2008 -- radox Community Technologies (Paradox CT), a southern California non-profit organization focused on providing low income communities with resources to effectively compete in a technology driven society announced that they have selected LoveMyPrices.coms Micro 2000 diagnostic solutions as their software of choice for improving the performance and quality of refurbished systems being distributed. Paradox CT has successfully distributed hundreds of computers that have been donated from corporate private party sponsors and it is their top priority to ensure that the systems being provided are clean and free from defect.

The partnership with LoveMyPrices, Inc, was forged based on a requirement to gain optimal production from limited technical resources. Finding low cost and qualified technical help in low income communities such as Fillmore, CA where Paradox CT headquarters is based is difficult at best. LoveMyPrices solution helped remove unnecessary complexities so the focus could be on producing more systems and training programs.

Micro2000 is an intuitive program that provides several features and benefits including:

- Low level format capabilities that can return a drive to factory specifications
- Secure data destruction
- HDD error sector mapping and repair for data quality and integrity
- Runs under an independent OS to standardize otherwise complex processes on any Intel or Intel compatible based machine
- Memory testing
- Partition editor /partition recovery e.g. MBR recovery and fixed disk editor
- Extreme accuracy
- Over 250 test routines

LoveMyPrices earned the support of Paradox CT by providing a level of service unparalleled within the industry. They displayed a strong technical knowledge towards the solutions they sell and provided educational insight into how it can be implemented to best suit Paradox CT's unique requirements. Response times were prompt, service was courteous and with pricing, their name says it all.

LoveMyPrices Mirco2000 software Micro Scope has removed a considerable burden from the shoulders of our system preparation team of volunteers who are not always computer savvy, said Robert Phillips, Paradox CT's board president. The application has simplified our operation on multiple levels by decreasing the learning curve necessary to run system tests and diagnostics and at the same time decreasing post delivery support typically associated with untested systems.

We are pleased to be working with Paradox CT and supporting such a great cause, said Ron Montoya, President of LoveMyPrices, Inc.. "It makes me proud to know that our technology is playing a role in helping under privileged people gain an equal opportunity at a life that may not have been possible without such a contribution.

Paradox CT is a not for profit organization with a mission to provide refurbished computers, Microsoft application training, keyboarding skills, Internet use and other interactive technology to economically and educationally disadvantaged youth. LoveMyPrices. com has been online since 2002 providing numerous clients with outstanding values on a variety of products and services. As an authorized representative for various companies, LoveMyPrices.com in most cases tries to offer lower prices than the manufacturer, while still providing all the benefits like tech support, superior customer service and warranties on their solutions at the same level received when purchasing products direct.
