QualityMatters.com to Sell Handmade Wood Cutting Boards by Chatelle Inc.

Online retailer QualityMatters.com is pleased to announce its decision to sell handmade wood cutting boards crafted by Chatelle Inc. Later, QualityMatters.com will also offer other products by the Oregon City, Ore.-based manufacturer.

/24-7PressRelease/ - PORTLAND, OR, April 30, 2008 - Online retailer QualityMatters.com is pleased to announce its decision to sell handmade wood cutting boards crafted by Chatelle Inc. Later, QualityMatters.com will also offer other products by the Oregon City, Ore.-based manufacturer.

The affiliation of the two companies gives consumers easier access to the high-quality wood cutting boards by Chatelle (<http://www.chatellefurniture.com/>), which specializes in furniture and woodworking. It also allows online shoppers the ability to avoid ordering cutting boards manufactured from unknown overseas sources.

Unlike many products outside and inside the United States, Chatelle's wood cutting boards (<http://www.qualitymatters.com/Cutting-Boards-s/335.htm>) are not mass-produced. Instead, they are uniquely created to deliver the highest quality, functionality and style. The materials used to make the cutting boards--black walnut, red American cherry and maple--are kiln dried and coated with proprietary food-grade block oil for maximum durability and safety.

"Each piece is handmade, using quality hardwood products and food-grade stainless steel for the handle bushings (when added)," said Doug Hall, Vice President of Marketing and Sales for Quality Matters. "They are made in the United States, so there is no worrying about potential contamination--as there might be from some of the boards manufactured overseas."

The new business relationship with Chatelle is consistent with QualityMatters.com's commitment to providing consumers with affordable, high-quality products. "We focus on products manufactured by companies with high standards of quality and/or customer service, but we offer small-company customer service and prices that are usually lower than those of the larger websites," Hall explained.

QualityMatters.com is an innovative Website that serves as a one-stop source for consumers who want to quickly and easily locate high quality products online. It sells a variety of products in a wide range of categories, including home and garden, electronics, appliances, and sports and outdoors. Site visitors can search for products by price or leading brands from BOSCH to Whynter. Visitors can also purchase gifts and extended warranties from the site to enhance their shopping experience.

Based in Portland, Ore., QualityMatters.com is a successful, privately-owned business. Since its inception five years ago, founder Renee Hall has transformed the company from a budding start-up to a thriving competitor of ecommerce giants such as Amazon.com and Overstock.com. Her goal is simple: to provide premium products while offering customer service superior to that found at leading ecommerce sites.
