Sunrooms are an Economical Solution for Home Improvement

Real Estate studies indicate a general trend for economical home improvement. Sunrooms, solariums and conservatory additions, offer the best of both worlds. Four Seasons Sunrooms, premier manufacturer and builder of year-round glass sunrooms, confirms the data.

/24-7PressRelease/ - ORANGE COUNTY, CA, May 02, 2008 -- Living outdoors with a lavishly furnished backyard was the trendy renovation for homes a few years ago. Back then, people designed their open outdoors area with cementation on sections of their backyards, installing swimming pools, and even installing other components like outdoor kitchens. However, between the upkeep of expensive outdoor furnishings, its attraction to animals that damage it, and costly repairs, the trend has quickly moved another direction, Sunrooms and energy conservatory windows. A recent research study done by Halifax shows around half of those who took part in the research have carried out some type of home improvements within the last 12 months.

According to David Donnelly of Ambiance Additions, open outdoor decks and yards are still common, but there has been an increased attraction towards sunrooms, solariums and conservatory house additions. A recent article in the Wall Street Journal has even explained how homeowners have been choosing these types of enclosed outdoor living options, instead of investing in waterproof furniture and other embellishments. In another recent study, conducted by Kelton Research, states "(44%) homeowners surveyed... window replacement would be more important than a variety of popular home improvements like a kitchen remodel, installing new carpeting, landscaping the yard or building a new deck."

"There are a myriad of pitfalls that become reasons why people get fed up with open outdoor areas," Donnelly said. "Between the time spent for its maintenance, expensive repairs, and other factors, homeowners find that it becomes more work than required inside their home and would rather invest in an extended part of their homes that require minimal worry. That is why we at Ambiance Additions have seen an increase in our business, the sunroom cost is lower, especially when it comes to installing sunrooms."

Enclosed house additions, like sun rooms, offer many benefits and they become integral parts of the home, Donnelly said. Homeowners enjoy the feeling of being outdoors, without having to deal with neglected outdoor furniture and accessories.

"With sunrooms, you get the best of both worlds. You are able to enjoy the beauty of the outdoors without dealing with the maintenance and wildlife," Donnelly said. "In addition, a sunroom offers you a higher return investment on your home."
