A Real Golf Site! - A new website that provides useful resources for the serious golfer.

Tired of spending hours searching the Internet looking for golf information? Now you can use A Real Golf Site! as your primary resource to quickly and easily find golf-related information on the web.

/24-7PressRelease/ - May 08, 2008 - A Real Golf Site! (<http://www.arealgolfsite.com>) was created by Alamo Web Solutions to provide an easy to use, well-organized golf resource that serious golfers would enjoy using anytime they need to find golf information on the web. The information on A Real Golf Site! is organized into logical categories that can be easily navigated using a common menu structure on each page. To address ease-of-use for new users, a User Guide is accessible from any page. The home page also includes sections that inform readers what's new and what's coming soon on A Real Golf Site!, plus quick links to frequently used golf references (e.g. online golf publications, golf TV schedules, etc).

A Real Golf Site! provides a wide range of golf information for serious golfers and parents of junior golfers. A Real Golf Site! includes:

- A directory of over 200 of the best golf resorts and golf destination courses to help plan your next golf vacation.
- A section that provides up-to-date information and specifications for golf equipment from all major golf equipment manufacturers.
- A directory that lists over 200 of the best golf instructors and golf schools in the United States.
- A junior golf section that describes how to get your son or daughter started in golf and how to support their golf development.
- A college golf section provides a wide range of useful resources to help parents and junior golfers through the golf recruitment process.
