/24-7PressRelease/ - May 09, 2008 - Likno Software is proud to announce the launch of AllWebMenus 5.1 PRO build #734, the most versatile system available for your web site navigation needs.

The new, major version of AllWebMenus brings you a full set of optimized existing and new features and properties, which make cross-browser menu-making easier for the professional and amateur web developer.

AllWebMenus resolves all existing DHTML incompatibilities across the major DHTML-enabled browsers (IE, Firefox, Netscape, Opera, Mozilla, Safari, Konqueror, etc.) and offers peace of mind to the professional web developer by producing truly cross-browser navigation menus. This process is transparent to the web developer who enjoys the design of cool navigation menus without bothering for the technicalities lying behind their creation.

Through the URL below you can browse through some of the examples already offered:

Among the new features found in AllWebMenus 5.1 PRO build #734 are:

- Border property now supports "individual" borders for any of the 4 sides (top, bottom, left, right) of both Groups and Items
- Fixed problem where an item in "HTML - Full Mode" did not respond correctly to mouse events
- Fixed problem when editing _Item Text_ property & the DPI was more than 120
