"Got Beats?: In Search Of The Next Super Producer!

-Warren G to host new reality show-

New Reality show seeking untapped talent.

/24-7PressRelease/ - May 10, 2008 - Writer/filmmaker Jeremy J. Ford has completed development of his new show, "Got Beats?". The show is designed to identify the music industry's next super producer. The weekly format will feature 13 producers who will create "beats" for some of today's hottest hip-hop artist -- All in a quest to see who really has the "beats" and "talent" to create hit songs! Warren G has signed on as host of the show.

Ford's other upcoming projects include, "Road To Sturgis", a film based on the biker/rock subculture and "Mischievous Souls", a film that will feature professional skateboarders.

In addition to filmmaking and project development, Ford has extensive experience in reality television. He is currently part of the story development team for A&E's, "Intervention". Other past reality show experience includes, Flavor of Love, Beauty and the Geek, Real World, Sunset Tan, Biggest Loser, Shot at Love and Charm School.

Ford is also working on Discovery Channel's new show, "The Green Life", starring Adrian Grenier, star of HBO's "Entourage" . The show is set to air this summer.
