David Stanley Redfern Launch Russian Language Operation

David Stanley Redfern Ltd have put themselves firmly on the map as a growing force in overseas property, by opening a new Russian office, staffed with Russian language speakers, and accompanied by a Russian language website www.davidstanleyredfern.ru.

/24-7PressRelease/ - NOTTINGHAM, UK, May 13, 2008 - The move comes after a similar recent venture into Germany. The new operation officially launched May 1 2008.

The big difference between the two operations is that the German office is charged with sourcing developments, and overseeing inspection trips in Germany, for clients based in Germany and around the world, whereas the Russian office and website is there to facilitate the purchase of DSR property by Russians that don't speak English.

Russians have always formed a large portion of David Stanley Redfern's clientele, though previously only those that had a good grasp of the English language. Now, with Russian speaking staff and a Russian language website, David Stanley Redfern are ready and able to facilitate property purchases for the entire nation of Russia.

Russia made the press recently for having a property boom of its own, but like many industrialised nations, property prices there are now incredibly high. Since they started growing to such levels, increasing numbers of Russians have been looking at overseas property for investment, be it to increase their buying power to get a property in Russia or just to make a profit. However, many Russians are buying overseas property simply as a holiday home.

David Stanley Redfern hit it big with Russian buyers, because at the time they started looking overseas, David Stanley Redfern Ltd had property in the countries they were most keen on, such as Ukraine and Finland, Goa and Albania.

But it is not only that, Russian buyers are known for conducting stringent due diligence, into any property and location they consider buying into. And we have become popular with them because we also go to extreme lengths in our due diligence, and so we have the answers for every question they ask. Also because we are always happy to field multiple phone-calls, until they are completely happy with every aspect of the property they are looking at.
