At Last a Real Alternative for eBay Sellers

Online marketplace comes to the rescue of the growing number of frustrated eBay power sellers, offering a commission free choice to selling online.

/24-7PressRelease/ - WOODFORD GREEN, UK, May 14, 2008 - Online 'eclectic' trading company, Jinco Ltd launches Yoobos.com (<http://www.yoobos.com>), a global online marketplace that offers net traders who are serious about selling online a real eBay alternative. Yoobos provides online store space which is rented out for a flat fee with no extra commission charges when goods are sold.

Aimed at wholesale traders, small retail businesses and people just wanting to sell items from home, Yoobos offers stores ranging in cost from 3.75 up to 10, on which up to 30 miscellaneous items can be sold at once. If an item isn't selling, it can be switched by the trader at no extra charge during the rental period.

For a small additional charge (5.00), sellers can choose the enhanced store option to make their store look like their own e-commerce site. Enhanced store owners get their own URL (e.g. www.yoobos.com/yourstore/) which they can use to promote their store.

Some of the key site features are; a free swap out facility, multi currency trading, multi-buy discount facility. For a full list of site features, visit <http://www.yoobos.com/index.asp-Q-Page-E-yoobos.com>,94706362

Goods on the site are varied and include antiques, art, musical instruments, consumer electronics, collectibles, books, magazines, toys and games.

Ian Harvey, director, comments: "We are offering an affordable way of buying and selling online which gives small businesses and the general public a commission free choice. We're not just another eBay clone, our fresh approach to listing charges sets us apart from the rest."

Jinco Ltd is an Essex based company set up by three friends looking to make a difference in the world of Internet trading. We took a good look at what was available and saw that we could offer a solution which was considerably more flexible and, above all, a lot cheaper than what was/is currently being offered.

The company was founded in October 2005 by John Jones, Ian Harvey and Nick Harvey. Once formed, we immediately started work on the yoobos site. Between us we have almost half a century's worth of experience in the IT and retail industries.
