Hosting Company Rackspasevalley Introduces Text Message Notification Service

Users of services of the hosting company Rackspacevalley will soon be able to receive information on their servers' statuses via text messages, effective May 19, 2008.

/24-7PressRelease/ - May 15, 2008 - Hosting services provider Rackspacevalley introduces a new service of text message notification. Soon the company's clients will be able to receive text messages on their mobile phones notifying them of their server status according to their adjusted flags. The service will be tested starting May 19, 2008. For the system's work to be corrected, the provider kindly requests its clients to send their comments to addresses indicated on the website www.rackspacevalley.com.

Rackspacevalley is a provider of hosting services. The software installed and maintained includes PHP, MySQL and Apache. Each account also includes unlimited POP account, email aliases. The main electrical room provides clean, consistent power via multiple redundant switchgears and UPS systems. Two diesel generators with 8,000 gallons of fuel are on stand-by to ensure consistent power supply to the facility. Consistent temperature and humidity ranges in the Data Center uses the latest technologies in fire protection including a VESDA early smoke detection system, an FM-200 gas-based fire suppression system, and a double pre-action dry pipe fire suppression system.
