Just Launched: New Video Community Script Enables Anyone To Be Just Like Youtube

New video community script allows anyone to create the next big sensation in the video sharing market, tapping into a billion dollar market in just a few clicks.

/24-7PressRelease/ - MAPLE, ON, CANADA, May 17, 2008 -- With the advent of YouTube and their incredible success, there has never been a bigger demand for scripts that enable the creation of a video sharing community. Vidiscript, a Canadian company, has just launched their new tool which makes it incredibly easy for anyone to take advantage of this booming market and start their own community, using this new video sharing script..

Using VidiScript, site owners now have the capability to easily cash in on this billion dollar business, by creating a new video sharing community, or adding it to one of their existing sites. VidiScript.com provides easy information for those looking to get started right away.

"Roughly 70-90 million visitors frequent the top 10 video sharing on a daily basis" says CEO, Joseph Messina "There are still plenty of untapped niche markets. VidiScript gives people the opportunity to get into these niche markets without having to break the bank". The last statement about not having to break the bank is an understatement: The script is actually being offered to users free of charge at www.VidiScript.com

"Now anyone, regardless of their experience, has the capability to set up their own video community site and start reaping the benefits of this marketing, which is growing every day." continues Messina. YouTube now sees more than 30 million visitors every day and was purchased by Google for more than $1.77 billion. Other similar sites have traffic numbers that stretch well past 20 million unique users every single day.

According to media studies, video sharing is one trend that looks as though it will continue its upward spiral. The user video sharing market is enormous and YouTube's competitors have shown that there is more than enough market share to go around. There are still plenty of untapped niche markets and VidiScript gives people the opportunity to get into these niche markets without having to break the bank. Now anyone can start a video sharing community. For more information, visit <http://www.VidiScript.com>
