New Costa Rica Development is Quickly Picking up Steam in the Sales Department

A new development in Costa Rica, Cerro Fresco, is quickly picking up in the sales department. With an excellent location, amazing amenities, and high visibility, this development has become one of the best selling ones in the country.

/24-7PressRelease/ - JACO, COSTA RICA, May 17, 2008 - Cerro Fresco, which is a new luxury real estate development in Costa Rica, is quickly picking up steam in the sales department. In fact, sales have been so good that they've even started working on a new development as well - Highlands Estates. With an excellent location in Jaco, Costa Rica, Cerro Fresco has quickly picked up steam to become one of the best selling developments in the entire country.

From this development residents find awe inspiring views of the mountains as well as the ocean. Throughout the entire property there are lovely tropical garden sanctuaries as well as calming waterfalls that add to the beauty of the entire development, making in an attractive place for people to live. A variety of amenities are also included as well, including a spa, restaurant, and concierge.

The area of Jaco, where the development is located, has gone from a sleepy little surfer town, to a town that is alive and full of excitement. The town is booming and full of nightlife, as many tourists visit the area and many new people settle down in the beautiful area.

When asked what attributed to the huge sales figures of this new development, SEO Person, Bob Garcia, had this to say: "The marketing campaigns for Cerro Fresco and the other CR Development properties are by far the most aggressive of any real estate developments across the country of Costa Rica. More is spent on billboard ads and print ads around the country by this company than any other development."

Also, along with great advertising, innovative online search engine campaigns have also been done, bringing in many new leads and leading to amazing amounts of sales as well. With excellent search engine visibility out there on the web, it is easy to see how this development is quickly picking up steam and making record amounts of sales.
