Coeo announces double award success

London based Coeo has announced a double success - the award of Gold Partner status by Microsoft and accreditation of the first ever person outside of Microsoft as a 'Microsoft Certified Architect: Database'.

/24-7PressRelease/ - LONDON, UK - June 09, 2008 - The twin announcements highlight the strength of the relationship between Coeo and Microsoft and underline the depth of experience the firm has in SQL Server consulting.

Since its launch by former Microsoft employees in 2006, the firm has concentrated on the benefits available from SQL Server. Coeo offers exceptionally high levels of expertise with upgrades, migrations, performance tuning and new deployments. Emphasis is on tight integration and needs-based solutions are based on extensive Enterprise experience - they are designed to deliver the clear management information needed for better and quicker decisions.

Co-founder and Director Justin Langford is delighted with the Gold Partner award: "We have been working hard to acquire Gold Partner status, the highest level of accreditation given by Microsoft. Achieving it this quickly reflects the commitment we have shown to developing a trusted relationship with Microsoft. Christian Bolton is the first person to become accredited as MCA: Database while working outside of Microsoft which reinforces Coeo's commitment to providing world class SQL Server consulting."

Coeo offers a range of consulting services around SQL Server helping businesses: to Discover how new technology can be leveraged to help their business, to Optimise their existing investments, and to Mentor staff in SQL Server development and management within mission critical OLTP or VLDB environments.

Coeo has acquired an excellent reputation for high service levels and accountability throughout the UK and its new status means it is poised to exploit its range of skills across a wider market, with plans now in place to expand further into Europe.
