Intrepid Travel Announces New Self Guided Walking Tours Through Southern France

Intrepid Travel offers new self guided experiences through the south of France.

/24-7PressRelease/ - BOULDER, CO, July 19, 2008 - Intrepid Travel announces two new self guided walking tours through the South of France, one through Provence and the second through Dordogne.

Travelers on the Provence self guided walking tour will discover the 'garden of France' in western Provence, its fertile plains and valleys are punctuated by arid ridges of limestone providing the unique contrasts that characterize the area. The tour explores the richly cultivated valleys and follows paths rising through scented scrub, lavender fields, vineyards and pine forests. Walkers will pass picturesque villages of honey-colored stone, habitations of prehistoric man and a landscape bathed in the vibrant light that inspired Cezanne and van Gogh.

Provence Self Guided Walking Tour

Traverse idyllic Provencal country as featured in 'Jean de Florette', Explore landscapes that inspired the impressionists Van Gogh and Cezanne, Get into local life while staying in the villages of Provence, Wander through the Luberon with its rows of lavender and flower-filled meadows. 8 days for $1630.

Travelers on the Dordogne self guided tour will bear witness to the history of struggle and conflict that has left its mark on the architecture of the region. The tour travels from the market town of St. Cere to the medieval town of Rocamadour. Intrepid's route through this beautiful region takes walkers past some of the most spectacular scenery in France while savoring France's most delectable cuisine.

Dordogne Self Guided Walking Tour

Take in spectacular views of ravines and gorges in the Dordogne Valley, Visit ancient fortresses and honey-colored villages, Explore a bustling market town on the River Bave, Walk along grassy paths overlooking the Gorge d'Autoire, Follow the forest paths through the tiny village of Mezels. 8 days for $1210.
