The first social/business networking portal for professionals involved in the financial industry.

Bankersavenue is the place where to develop new ideas, and have continuous exchange among different institutions and different specialties, an informal place where to talk about serious things.

/24-7PressRelease/ - MONACO, September 07, 2008 - It was started from bankers for bankers, the assumption is that who work in finance is exposed to dynamics that generally the rest of the world ignore till the results of the above do not affect the day to day life. The consequence is that bankers and financier live a world a part where each new is decrypted and analyzed according to a specific and characteristic point of view, one of the easiest example is money, for those who belong to the industry money is first of all a commodity, a concept that would be impossible to explain to outsider.

Why not give bankers and financiers a place to meet, where they can remain connected to their world but where [they can also] relax, learn and discuss?.

The primary objective of the website is to be a one-stop-shop for all information related to the financial industry.
