Otay Mesa Data Center Celebrates Rapid Growth with Rebranding of Company

Web Hosting Company Serving San Diego Businesses of All Sizes Grows Nearly 3,000% YOY

SAN DIEGO, CA, October 04, 2008 /24-7PressRelease/ -- The Otay Mesa Data Center, Inc. (www.OMDC.net), a San Diego-based provider of secure and reliable Internet, Web hosting and colocation services for companies of all sizes, has found its niche in the community of Otay Mesa with a new name and image. Founded in 2004 by entrepreneurial IT veteran Norman Jester, the company announced its new official brand this year to celebrate its recent rapid growth in San Diego County.

"Otay Mesa Data Center is a new name to celebrate our rapid expansion into new markets and liberation from other outsourcing data centers," explained Norman Jester, CEO, OMDC. "We selected Otay Mesa as our headquarters because there was a void of high capacity Internet in the South Bay area. We provide services to businesses and individuals throughout San Diego County who previously had to drive north for their colocation Internet providers or who were just paying too much for quality hosting services."

Specializing in Linux, FreeBSD, Windows and MacOSX dedicated servers and colocation, OMDC offers customized solutions, from a single, entry-level server to a complex environment of hundreds of servers configured with custom routing and firewalls. The company has the technology to power the IT needs of any business through tailored service plans. For more information about the Otay Mesa Data Center, Inc. visit www.OMDC.net.
