RoboCrib Line of Dispensing Machines Exclusive to AutoCrib
AutoCrib Ends Contract with WinWare

SANTA ANA, CA, October 07, 2008 /24-7PressRelease/ -- AutoCrib announces the end of its contract to provide RoboCrib and other industrial vending machines to WinWare, developer of CribMaster software. Effective October 1, 2008 AutoCrib software and industrial vending solutions, including the RoboCrib, will be available only through AutoCrib and its authorized distributors.

"We are committed to making the AutoCrib customer experience the best that it can be," explains Steve Pixley, CEO of AutoCrib, "We are constantly innovating to bring more software, hardware and service value to our customers. By having all of the pieces under the AutoCrib umbrella, we can innovate faster and deliver higher levels of customer service and support. It is this commitment to service and innovation that has enabled AutoCrib to lead the industrial vending industry since AutoCrib's introduction of our first machine in 1995."

RoboCrib is an innovative line of carousel-style industrial vending solutions, all of which provide quick (less than 10 seconds) secure access to virtually any unpackaged item. The original machine, the RoboCrib 2000, provides access to over 2500 items, all easily access through one of 15 automated doors serving 12 vertical tray assemblies. The smaller RoboCrib 1000 provides access to over 1000 items, and the new RoboCrib 500 provides access to over 500 items in a very small 30" x 32" footprint. Unlike many point-of-use dispensing machines, the RoboCrib manages both issue and return transactions of either fast or slow moving items in a high security environment while eliminating the need for individual re-packaging.
