Chillibreeze to provide a platform to budding Indian writers to publish their works of fiction

The first ePublication, 9 lives and a death, by Sabarna Roy, from the new division of Chillibreeze Solutions, a leading content and design firm in India, to support the work of budding Indian fiction writers, is available on their website.

SHILLONG, INDIA, October 10, 2008 /24-7PressRelease/ -- Chillibreeze Solutions, a leading content and design firm in India, has set up a division to support the work of budding Indian fiction writers. The first ePublication of this division, 9 Lives and a Death, a collection of emotionally charged short stories, by Sabarna Roy is now available on its site. 9 Lives and a Death, is an interesting mix of short stories, centered around the angst of the urban male, in a fast changing world. It explores betrayal, loss, desire and finally redemption and hope.

ePublishing is fast emerging as an attractive option for many talented writers who earlier could not explore the option of publishing their work due to the prohibitive costs of traditional publishing. They also lacked the services of an experienced editor, an essential factor for the success of any book, to review and enhance their work. Their dreams can become reality now through ePublishing with Chillibreeze.

ePublishing is still at a nascent stage and is encountering its share of teething troubles. Certain established mindsets have to be changed, one of which is that books published on the internet do not compare in quality to books published traditionally. For this reason, it is essential that a talented writer needs an established name in the internet circles to gain credibility for his work as well as the services of experienced editors to further refine his work.

Chillibreeze with its vast experience in developing content for a diverse set of clients, is a well-recognized name in the online content development and management circles. It has qualified and experienced editors to provide quality inputs and advice to budding writers to ensure that they are successful in their writing efforts.

Chillibreeze takes the writer through the entire cycle of bringing the eBook out, right from offering tips on writing to editing to design and layout of the cover and inside pages and eventual online publishing of the work in various formats.

Chillibreeze would also undertake to promote the eBook alongwith its other products and services. Chillibreeze has an attractive revenue model to remunerate these budding writers and maximize their earnings.
