Child Support 411 gives the power back to the parents!

Child Support made simple. Use a Child Support Calculator. Learn the Child Support Guidelines.

BOSTON, MA, October 11, 2008 /24-7PressRelease/ -- With the launch of his new website, ChildSupport411.com, Ron Lasorsa offers resources, tools, and encouragement to parents who are sick of having their finances drained and their families tortured by divorce attorneys and the court system.

In an effort to fight back against what he has labeled The Divorce Industry, LaSorsa takes the revolutionary stance that parents, regardless of their decision to split, still know what is best for their own children. The site ChildSupport411.com encourages parents to educate themselves on child support laws and regulations, and come to their own agreement—based on what is best for their family--not the pocketbooks of attorneys or state agencies.

As a Divorce Industry survivor, LaSorsa advocates for children, teaching parents how the current divorce industry extorts money, delays settlement, and takes a hard toll on the emotional health of everyone involved. He demonstrates how the state attempts to get the most amount of money possible from the non-custodial parent, while paying the custodial parent as little as possible—all to the detriment of the children for whom this support should be intended!

LaSorsa offers two free ebooks on his site, along with information about a unique software application that helps parents calculate their own child support payments based on child support laws. The software also provides additional financial planning tools that will save thousands of dollars in attorney fees and provide financial stability for both parties during a difficult and unstable period.

Find out more about Ron, his ebooks, and his software that saves parents time, money, and emotional distress at www.ChildSupport411.com.

About Kids Come First Coalition

The Kids Come First Coalition is a group of likeminded organizations that banded together for the greater good of the nuclear family. Their effort is motivated by their desire to change the existing system, which encourages the dissolution of the nuclear family. Their sworn enemy, "The Divorce Industry" has the unlimited financial backing of the government and various powerful interest groups to aid it. The Coalition has collectively realized that it must collaborate and rely upon the free market of both ideas and finances to champion their cause.
