October 16, 2008 /24-7PressRelease/ -- The Big Apple, the city that never sleeps or the capital of the world nicknames saying it all about New York. Whenever businesses are going global or need to have a prestigious address to impress, then a New York office is a "must have".

The city is a global hub of international business and commerce and is one of three "command centers" for the world economy, along with London and Tokyo. Many major corporations are headquartered in New York City, including 44 Fortune 500 companies.

Besides being a global financial center, New York City is home to the world-renowned restaurants, architectural masterpieces and venerable art institutions that make it one of the planet's greatest cultural cities.

Should you want your business to achieve a worldwide status or simply be associated with prestige, the executive suites offered by the oldest established business center operator in New York are ideal.

This operator has been offering one of the best flexible executive office solutions in New York City for over 35 years. It provides office space and support services to entrepreneurs and multinational firms who demand the flexibility, cost-effectiveness and reliability that allow them to run their businesses effectively.

The building is located on Madison Avenue, just blocks away from the top New York five-star hotels and headquarters of a number of major US banks in New York City. The offices are fully furnished and stylishly decorated. The highly qualified staff offer great service and support to all tenants in the building.
