Mesa, Arizona Author Judy Azar LeBlanc Relocates to East Texas.

Award Winning Author, Judy Azar LeBlanc, whose fourth and favorite title, "Many Faces to Many Places" relocates to the 'Piney Woods' area of The Lone Star State.

MADILL, OK, October 16, 2008 /24-7PressRelease/ -- Multiple award winning author, Judy Azar LeBlanc, has relocated to East Texas. The move will expand LeBlanc's successful marketing of her latest book, "Many Faces to many Places," into a new region. Judy visited the picturesque "piney woods" area and fell in love with the people, the beautiful hilly woods, and the moderate climate found there. This visit led to her searching for a new home, and her eventual relocation to Hideaway Texas.

In a recent interview with NBR.org Managing Editor, Ray Ward, Leblanc said, "I am so excited about becoming a Texan, and getting settled into my new home ." "I absolutely love the peacefulness of the pine woods, the rolling hills, and the friendly people that I met there." " Being a writer, this is the ideal setting for me to continue my career as an author."

The now Texas author, Judy Azar LeBlanc's unique twist on classic themes is receiving critical acclaim for its timeliness as we search for what is true and meaningful in life today. Her book, "Many Faces to Many Places" has been awarded National Best Book and Audio Awards for three consecutive years includes the 2008 INDIE Excellence Award, Best Inspirational Book of the Year in 2006 by USA Book News and NewBookReviews.org, and was also awarded the finalist position in the Reader Views Literary Choice Awards for the General Fiction category, as well as finalist in the 2006 Media Literature and art, honorable mention at the 2007 NY Book Festival, and the DIY Book and Film Festival.
